

NEW ORLEANS TRIP
(Originally published April 1963)

After the long, cold winter, Muscogee County Medical Society members took advantage of the New Orleans Graduate Medical Assembly and headed for the Crescent City in droves. The graduate knowledge seekers included the Horns, the Brocatos, both Jarrells, the Roberts, the Johnsons, the Hirschs, the Hughstons, the Thrashes, the Venables and the Wallers. It is reported that the attendance along Bourbon Street midway and in the Royal Street antique shops exceeded the attendance at the medical lectures. The eating places visited included Arnaud's, Antoine's, Galatoire's, Brennan's, Pat O'Brien's, Court of Two Sisters, Commander's Palace and others whose names could not be recalled. Jack Hirsch led one tour through the Playboy Club; Edgar Horn and Sam Brocato were called in later to consult about a possible case of tularemia thought to have been contracted there. Some members even got to the races at the Fair Grounds in time to bet on Graff's horse, Miss Risque. Miss Risque was a poor risk that day and finished a disappointing fifth. Jody Jarrell won sixteen dollars at the track but lost it all trying to parlay it in brass antiques on Royal Street.
